

A recent addition to Dean Associates, Jill brings several years of design and construction administration experience in corporate interiors, retail and commercial architecture. Taking an interest in building environmentally responsible structures, Jill is now a registered LEED (Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design) Accredited Professional. The LEED system is a national standard for developing energy efficient, sustainable buildings and promoting consumer awareness of “green” building benefits. As a small business owner herself, Jill is sensitive to the needs of start-up companies and those who are re-evaluating their architectural requirements. Her multi-talented background allows her to bring many ideas and details together into one cohesive project.
